

Nevada's Title V Maternal and Child Health Program is administered through the Bureau of Family Health Services, Nevada State Health Division, Department of Health and Human Services. Programs and initiatives address areas of access to perinatal care, including preconceptional counseling, perinatal substance abuse prevention, the MCH Campaign (a multi-faceted campaign to encourage early entry into prenatal care and a medical home for infants), Children with Special Health Care Needs including CSHCN systems development, newborn screening, newborn hearing screening, birth defects registry, and multidisciplinary specialty clinics, and children and adolescents, including teen pregnancy prevention, adolescent clinics, child abuse prevention, early childhood and six to ten childhood development, and injury, rape, and oral health for the general population. The Bureau also supervises the state WIC Program and the Primary Care Development Center, which promotes access to primary care including dental care and mental health for underserved Nevadans.
